HOLD REPORT IS IRREGULAR

Commissioners Reject Bids on Oneal Highway Because Provision For Macadam Binder is Attached.

BY THE COUNTY SURVEYOR

Viewer Walter Patton Refuses to Sign Report, Because of Action—Added $3,680 to Cost.

On account of irregularities in making estimates and in the reports of the viewers and engineer, three of the four road contracts which were advertised to be let yesterday and today by the commissioners were continued. In the most glaring irregularity—the Lien A. Oneal highway—the report of the viewers was declared null and void and the viewers were ordered to make another report.

The fault with the viewers on the Oneal highway lay in the fact that the viewers agreed on what kind of material should be used and submitted their report with the estimated cost attached, and then Dalph Cameron, the county surveyor, attached several paragraphs to the report which provided for a bituminous bound macadam at an additional cost of $3680 over and above the cost as estimated by the viewers.

The report of the viewers was placed on file July 23. It did not provide for a macadam binding. After it was placed on file in the auditor's office the county surveyor attached four and a half typewritten pages entitled "Bituminous Material for use by the Penetration Method" to the end of the report, and in the center of the report where the macadam to be used was described by the viewers, the county surveyor supplied a note which reads "Bituminous Bound Macadam. This north portion of said road shall be bituminous bound macadam, to be used to the satisfaction of the engineer or superintendent in charge. Total length, 7170 feet."

It seems that the attorneys for the road and some other people vitally interested began to talk macadam binder after the report had been reported. After the report had been written and placed on file, Edmund B. Lowden, one of the viewers, was persuaded to file the report with the attached provision for bituminous macadam. The county surveyor, who attached the additional specifications, also signed the report.

But Walter Patton, the other viewer, bucked. He refused to sign the report with any amount of persuasion, he contending that the viewers had already made the report and that it was entirely irregular to attach the provision for macadam binder. The failure of Patton to sign the report was given as one of the reasons for the commissioners refusing the report.

The commissioners' record of today's business shows the following: "Bids on Oneal road rejected. It being shown to the board that addition had been made to the report of viewers and specifications, since some were filed, the former order of the board approving the supplemental report of viewers and final report of viewers and ordering road constructed is now set aside and annulled. And the report of the viewers and engineer is now on motion set aside and said viewers are now ordered to file report in this said matter before September 25."

And so it will be seen that the commissioners had already ordered the road and advertised for bids before macadam binder provision was attached. With this addition, the

WILL PREACH TO LABORERS

Rev. W. H. Wylie Announces Special Sermon For Sunday.

A special service for the laboring men will be held at the St. Paul M. E. church next Sunday evening, and the day will be known at the church as "Labor Sunday." The Rev. W. H. Wylie will preach a special sermon in keeping with the spirit of the day on the subject "Christ and the Toiler." A cordial invitation is extended to all working men in the city and county.

JAMES FLOYD IS SERIOUSLY HURT

Local Plasterer's Spine is Injured in Accident at Glenwood School Building Today.

HIT ON HEAD WITH TIMBER

James Floyd, 612 West First street was seriously injured while employed on the new Glenwood school building this morning. A heavy piece of timber, three by twelve inches fell off a scaffold and hit him a terrific blow on the top of the head. He was rendered unconscious by the blow. Dr. J. T. Paxton was called to attend him. Dr. Paxton feared that Floyd's spinal column had been injured by the blow, because he complained of severe pains in the back of his neck and all down his spine. Dr. Paxton would not allow Floyd to be moved until this afternoon, when he was placed on a cot and hauled to Rushville on an I. & C. car. He was taken to his home in Wyatt's motor truck. Floyd is a plasterer by trade.

PREPARING FOR NEXT REGISTER

All Parties Are Making Arrangements to Get All Voters to Register Sept. 6.

WOULD GET ALL THIS TIME

Active preparations are being made by the Republican, Bull Moose and Democratic State organizations for the next session of the registration boards, Friday, September 6. The registration in May was very heavy in Rush county, it being estimated that more than three-fourths of the vote registered. Rush county ranks second in Indiana for the number of votes registered.

Both the Democratic and Republican leaders at that time said they were satisfied with the results of the first registration.

It is regarded as of great importance by all of the political managers that as many voters as possible be induced to register at the next period. The Republican precinct committeemen and registration clerks were instructed by the Rush county managers to see that every Democratic voter registers on September 6. The Republican State organization has instructed the party organization all over the State to get busy and see that all Republicans who have not registered to do so on September 6.

EDWARD JUNKEN EXPIRED TODAY

Death Marked Close of Successful Career of a Prosperous Posey Township Farmer.

HE WAS LOYAL REPUBLICAN

His Grandfather Was First Clerk of Circuit Court Ever Elected in Rush County.

Edward A. Junken, age seventy-one, a prosperous and well known farmer of Posey township, is dead at the home of his daughter, Mrs. David Webster, southwest of this city. He had been in bad health, and his condition has been such in the last several days that he did not warrant any hope for his recovery.

Mr. Junken was a splendid man, a true man, one in whom his neighbors always imposed the greater confidence. From his earliest days he always was admired and respected by every one of his hundreds of friends.

The deceased was a God-fearing man one of the type which was so often found in the early history of Rush county, one who respected the church and gave liberally to it of his means and his life. He was identified with the First Presbyterian church early in life and came to be an elder in the Rushville church several years ago. He was a faithful and true church member and has often been pointed to as an example for the coming generation to follow.

Mr. Junken was a member of Joel Wolfe post G. A. R. and took an active part in that organization. In addition he belonged to the Odd Fellows lodge. As a soldier he was an ardent and valiant fighter. He took part in some of the famous engagements of the Civil war, namely, Kenesaw Mountain, Hoover's Gap, Dalton and Nashville.

Mr. Junken had secretly attained his majority when the trouble that threatened to dissolve the Union and place it in a turmoil arose, and his sympathies were with the North from the very first. When the call for volunteers came, he was mustered into the Union army August 19, 1862, as a private in Company D, Sixty-eighth Indiana Regiment. He served with this regiment all during the four years of the struggle.

Mr. Junken was a loyal Republican. He had good reason to be as he originated from the good old Republican stock. His grandfather, William Junken, one of the early settlers in Rush county, was the first clerk of the circuit court ever elected in this county. William Junken was the first of a family of Republicans.

It was the one regret of Mr. Junken that he could not claim Rush county as his birth place. Before he entered this world as a son of Harvey and Betsy Junken, his parents had taken up residence in Barren county, Kentucky. He was born September 27, 1840, and would have been seventy-two years old next month. His parents were married here in 1834 and soon afterwards moved to Barren county. Mr. Junken never knew what a loving and indulgent mother was, for the woman who gave him life died when he was but two weeks old.

Since he was seven years old Ed Junken had been an orphan, his father having died in 1847, in Barren county, Kentucky. He had to depend on relatives for an education. Until he was twelve years old, Mr. Junken attended the old Camden seminary in his native county and at the age of twelve he moved to Rush county with his uncle, Alexander McHatton, and for the next year made his home with the parents of his mother, who

ARE TACKLING WRONG ISSUE

Many Consumers Hold Real Fault With Gas Companies is Combination Against Patrons.

ARE NOT ALLOWED TO CHANGE

Because of Supreme Court Decision Rushville Co. Can't be Stopped in Making Raise.

The opinion among many gas consumers in Rushville since the Rushville Natural Gas Company has announced that it will increase the price of gas from twenty-five to forty cents a thousand October first, is that it would be futile to attempt to stop the company in its endeavor to get fifteen cents more a thousand for its gas, and that the great and glaring fault is to be found with gas companies in Rushville is that they have a close corporation which is injurious to consumers.

Many people have come to realize in the last few days, since the announcement of the raise in the price of gas has been made by the old company, that the gas companies here have an agreement that is being used to the detriment of the consumers. This agreement is in effect that no patron can change from one company to another, even though the company from which he wants to buy gas has a main on the street on which the patron lives.

The agreement is of many years' standing. It was made, apparently, so that the old company would not lose any of its customers in the old days when all three of the companies had plenty of gas. It would be natural for a consumer, were he using the old company's gas at twenty-five cents a thousand, to want to change to one of the two younger companies which get only fifteen cents a thousand, and to which price they are held by a city ordinance.

The Rushville company has told some of its patrons that it is willing that they shall change from their company to another, either the Central Fuel or the People's because their gas supply is running low and they probably will not have enough to supply their patrons this winter anyway. But when these patrons have gone to the other companies they have been told that it is impossible to change companies. The other two companies' excuse is now that their supply of gas is short and that they can not take on any other patrons without it being detrimental to their other patrons.

Of course this condition did not exist when there was a good deal of gas in the local field. Whenever a patron wanted to change from the Rushville company to one of the cheaper companies he was told that such a thing would be impossible. Even when a patron moved into a house where the old company was already attached one of the other companies would not pipe in.

Many patrons believe that if the people of Rushville are really anxious to test anything they might try the legality of the actions of the three companies in the manner described. There is little doubt but what it is a combination which should not be allowed, many people declared, and which could be stopped if the question were placed before the courts as all the companies are common carriers and are by law compelled to furnish gas on demand if the price they ask is paid.

Many people realize that it would be useless to attempt to make the Rushville Natural Gas company adhere to its former price. An attempt was made in years gone by, as was explained in detail in the Daily Republican recently, to make the Rushville company act in accordance with the city ordinance which places a limit of fifteen cents a thousand to be charged for gas. The company enjoined the city from interfering with its workmen in tearing up the streets here and was upheld in the State supreme court where the case was taken by the city.

The fault lies with the city council that gave the company an almost unlimited franchise when it first entered the city. The supreme court held the company could not be bound by the fifteen-cent ordinance which was passed after the franchise was granted.

SAYS HE WILL STAY WITH G. O. P. SHIP

Albert M. Bristor, Well Known here, Declares he Will Not Resign as Republican Candidate.

FOR THE STATE LEGISLATURE

"I won't resign as a Republican candidate for representative from Marion county," said Albert M. Bristor when asked what he intended to do about County Chairman Henry Wallace's announcement that he would ask Mr. Bristor to resign because he was a Bull Moose, according to the Indianapolis News.

"I don't see how Mr. Wallace can make me resign," said Mr. Bristor. "I don't like his attitude in this matter and intend to talk to him about it. He thinks I am going to work for Roosevelt, I suppose, because I was one of the contested Roosevelt delegates to the Republican State convention. But I am a Republican and I am not a Bull Moose. I am a progressive Republican. I am on the Republican ticket and intend to be for it. In my opinion, all the Republicans on the ticket should be in line with progressive ideas. But that opinion is no bar against my support of the Republican ticket."

"I wanted Mr. Bristor to declare himself and show the public just where he stood," said Mr. Wallace when informed that Mr. Bristor said he would not resign. Mr. Wallace said that he had sent people to question Mr. Bristor and had become convinced that the latter intended to support the Bull Moose candidate.

WILL SING AT RICHMOND

Carl Morris to be Brought Back For Special Recital.

Carl Morris, the Rush county boy who made good as a baritone soloist in New York City, will appear in a special recital in the Murray opera house in Richmond Sunday, September 22. The recital will be given under the auspices of Esther Griffin White, a Richmond newspaper writer. Mr. Morris has sung twice in Richmond and has gained such a large following of admirers there that there was a great clamor for him to be returned for a complete recital. He sang with a number of other artists at the Richmond May festival last spring, and Richmond people liked his voice so well that they wanted him to come back some time when he could give a full program.

WANT SOME GAMES.

The Milroy base ball team has not lost a game this season and it is looking for fields to conquer. The management would like to arrange games with any strong semi-professional teams in southeastern and in central Indiana. Base ball team managers are asked to address W. D. Riddell, manager of the Milroy team, for dates and terms.

WATSON'S STORY OF CONVENTION

Will be Circulated Widely to Show That Indiana Delegates Were Seated Fairly.

TAKES UP ALL THE CONTESTS

Big Meeting of Republican Workers in Indianapolis Sept. 4—Watson Goes to Vermont.

A big gathering of Republican workers from all over the State will take place in Indianapolis Wednesday, September 4. State Chairman Fred A. Sims has issued a call for a meeting of the State committee on that date. The session of the State committee will be made the occasion of a general conference of leading Republicans concerning the work of the campaign.

The State committee will make the necessary orders for opening and starting the campaign in a vigorous manner throughout the State. The committee meeting will begin at 10:30 a. m. at the Claypool hotel. All of the candidates on the State ticket will be called into the conference and members of the State executive, advisory and finance committees will attend. Mr. Sims has not yet announced the membership of the advisory and executive committees but will do so before the meeting.

All of the county chairmen of the State are invited to attend the conference which will be held in the afternoon. Other organization men from all over the State will be there. This will be in the nature of a general conference for starting the campaign. Winfield T. Durbin, Republican nominee for Governor; James P. Goodrich and other leaders will be at the conference. The leaders say it is their intention to lay plans for strenuous campaign work, and that they are receiving substantial encouragement from all parts of Indiana.

Activity along all lines of campaign efforts is already manifest at the State committee headquarters at the Claypool hotel. The speakers' bureau, headed by Emmett F. Branch of Martinsville, former Speaker of the Indiana house or representatives, is busy and requests from many towns and cities are coming in.

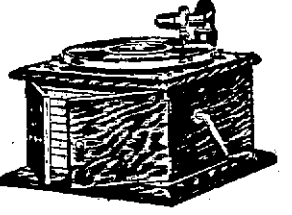

Many demands are being made for speeches from Republican speakers. James E. Watson left his home here today for the purpose of closing the Republican campaign in Vermont. Mr. Branch will go to Chicago Wednesday night, where he will confer with the national Republican speakers' bureau concerning the national speakers who may be obtained for the Indiana campaign.

Horace H. Hanna, manager of the Republican literary bureau, has received a consignment of literature from Chicago and is engaged in distributing it. Mr. Watson's speech before the last Republican State convention is being printed for distribution in pamphlet form. The State platform will soon be ready for distribution in pamphlet form. Another piece of literature which will be widely distributed will be Mr. Watson's account of the contest cases at the Republican national convention, showing that the Indiana delegates who were seated were fairly entitled to their places.

One of the things which has made the officials at the State headquarters feel good lately is the fact that every day several people have been calling there to announce that they had been with the Bull Moose party, but wish to come back into the Republican fold. Many of these people have said that they were disgusted with the Bull Moose "doings."

EMBLEM OF CROSS A SIGNAL FOR MURDER

Further Details of Recent Albanian Massacres.

Rome, Aug. 29.—Harrowing details of massacres of Christians by Turks and Mohammedan Albanians are printed by the Corriere Della Pagine of Bari, where, owing to its nearness, Albanian news often arrives without necessarily being authentic.

After the retreat of the Montenegrins from Berana, according to the Corriere's informants, ferocious hordes invaded the town and set fire to every house where the emblem of the cross was found and butchered the inhabitants. The charred bodies of many women were found hanging to trees. Between August 18 and 23, according to the story, fourteen villages were sacked and 150 wounded Christians swelled the ranks of refugees in Montenegro. Their stories of outrages infuriated the Montenegrins, who determined to save their brethren and rushed to the frontier and recaptured Berana by assault. The Albanians are watching developments closely.

Vandal Cuts Horses' Throats.

Brookville, Ind., Aug. 29.—Clifford Stenger, a farmer living about eight miles east of here, on going to his pasture to get his horses, found a horse valued at $250 dead, with its throat cut. The farmers have offered a reward of $100 for any information leading to the arrest of the guilty party. This is the second case of the kind in that section of the county in the last three months.

Boxing Bout Ends in Insanity.

Pedford, Ind., Aug. 29.—As a result of injuries received a short time ago in a boxing match, John Concannon, a young man of this city, is in a serious condition mentally, and as a result of an insanity inquest he will be taken to the insane hospital for treatment.

TENTH INFANTRY IS NOT TO MOVE

Its Presence in Nicaragua Is Not Necessary.

HURRY-UP ORDER IS REVOKED

When President Taft issued Orders For instant Dispatch of Regiment of Regulars to the Scene of Trouble in Central America Conditions Were Thought to Be Worse Than Present Reports Indicate.

Washington, Aug. 29.—President Taft's orders directing the Tenth infantry to proceed at once from Panama to Corinto, Nicaragua, have been revoked. The regiment, which was to have left Panama today, will remain in the canal zone and hold itself in readiness for further orders.

This action was decided on because the rebels have ceased their interference with communication between Managua and Corinto, on the west coast. The revolutionists are still in force at Leon, the largest city on the line of the railroad from the capital to the sea, but have given up attempting to block the passage of the United States forces.

The navy has assured the state department that under these circumstances it will be able to keep communication open. The cruiser California, prepared to land several hundred bluejackets, will reach Corinto today, and this force, naval officials say, with the marines and bluejackets already on the scene, will be sufficient to cope with the situation for the next few days. More marines are due at Corinto next week, being now enroute to Colon from Philadelphia, and the armored cruiser Colorado is on her way down the coast.

Relieved the Situation.

As the chief purpose of the Washington government in sending forces into Nicaragua was to re-establish communication, it is held that the yielding of the rebels has relieved the situation considerably. In some quarters, however, this turn of the situation is regretted for the reason it was hoped by this belligerent party that the rebels would continue the policy of attempting to oppose the United States to such a point that a sharp lesson might have been administered to them. For the present, however, the army will not be called upon to assist in the Nicaraguan situation.

Besides the apprehensions regarding the safety of these Americans, the indictment against the rebels contains many other counts. Appeals have been received from more than a score of American business houses represented and having property and employees in Nicaragua asking for protection of American life and property. Information from the American colony at Matagalpa, near Managua, says that the foreign residents are in grave danger. This colony consists of about 125 American ranchers and farmers engaged in growing coffee principally.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE

Funeral of the Late General Booth Attracted Thousands.

London, Aug. 29.—An enormous throng of people attended the funeral services of General William Booth, the late Salvation Army leader, which were held last evening at the Olympia. Although the crowd waited at the doors hours before they were opened, only a small number was able to get inside. More than 30,000 stood in the street while the services were going on.

Bramwell Booth, the late general's son, who has been made his successor, wept at the father's coffin. Up to that moment he had borne his grief in silence. Commissioner Edelaide Cox offered an impressive prayer in which she said:

"Lord, we do not want to disappoint Thee; help us to save the world."

Then at a signal the congregation joined in singing a familiar hymn. A number of children dressed in white, who were massed on the platform, were signalled to sing, but they broke down with emotion, their voices quivering and wailing. They recovered themselves, however, and went through the hymn with beautiful effect.

Before the conclusion of the service every Salvation member present was invited to make a fresh consecration of this life and everyone present received a printed covenant for signature.

REPORTER IS PRAISED FOR AVENGING HONOR

Cubans Make a Hero of Gibson's Assailant.

Havana, Aug. 29.—The Cuban reporter who assaulted Hugh S. Gibson, the American charge d'affaires, was discharged by the police judge before whom he was taken. On learning of this action Mr. Gibson protested to the secretary of state and secretary of justice. He demanded the immediate arrest of the man. This was done and bail was refused. The secretary of justice assured Mr. Gibson that the government would vigorously prosecute the case, the charge being assaulting the representative of a foreign nation.

The impulse which prompted the Cuban to assault Mr. Gibson was evidently a desire to pose as a hero. The newspapers which take this view praise the reporter for avenging Cuban honor aroused by the frequent notes from Washington elicited by the scandalous corruption of the Gomez administration. The papers also refer to the fact that Minister Deaupre and Charge Gibson presented the notes referred to.

The fact that an American diplomat was murdered attacked for carrying out the instructions of his government has intensely angered Cubans here and feeling between Cubans and Americans is running high.

Not Yet Out of Danger.

London, Aug. 29.—The water has subsided several feet at Norwich and the outlook is more hopeful, but still there are two or three causes of anxiety. First, the rain has begun again, though as yet the downpour is not serious. Secondly, there are fears for the big dam at the outskirts of the city, and thirdly, there is a possibility of the swell of the sea affecting the river, which is tidal.

Golf Tournament Proposed.

Marion, Ind., Aug. 29.—Invitations have been sent out by the Marion Country club to the various golf and country clubs of the state to attend an invitational golf tournament to be held in this city Sept. 12, 13 and 14.

FAILS TO REPORT

Fear Expressed For Fate of Damaged Gunboat Vicksburg.

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 29.—Fear is expressed for the damaged gunboat Vicksburg, because every effort to get in touch with the vessel since Tuesday has failed. A message from the stranded freighter Pleides, which went ashore near the entrance to Magdalena bay, has been received. It stated that the Vicksburg had not reached Magdalena bay, as was reported. Neither the flagship California of the Pacific fleet, the cruiser Denver, the collier Prometheus nor the supply ship Glacier, all supposed to be somewhere near Magdalena bay, have answered wireless calls since Tuesday.

Another Victim of Aviation.

Douai, France, Aug. 29.—Lieutenant Louis Felix M. Chaudenier of the aviation corps, was burned to death while flying in his aeroplane. His petrol tank burst into flames and the machine crashed to the earth. The young officer's body was completely consumed by the fire.

Another Balloon Race.

Colorado Springs, Col., Aug. 29.—The balloons Uncle Sam, Kansas City and Akron sailed from here for the Lahm-Antlers cup at 5:30 last evening. They sailed northeast.

ARBITRATION IS NOW DEMANDED

Great Britain Will Contest Our Canal Policy.

FATE OF TREATIES INVOLVED

It is Pointed Out That if This Government Should Refuse to Submit to Arbitration the Delicate Question Raised by England, Neither This Latter Country Nor France Could, in Self-Respect, Renew Treaties.

Washington, Aug. 29.—In a note received from the British embassy the state department has just been given notice that Great Britain will ask for arbitration in the controversy with the United States over legislation just passed by congress granting free passage through the Panama canal to American ships.

The note, which was signed by A. Mitchell Innes, charge d'affaires of the legation, was brief and, like the first informal protest against the then pending canal legislation of July 8, gave promise that a further communication from Great Britain is to follow. It is stated that the British government, in view of the enactment by congress of the legislative provisions against which protest was made on July 8, again calls the attention of the United States government to the view of Great Britain upon the subject with reference to the alleged violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

It is stated that the British government will make a careful study of the provisions of the bill and the reasoning advanced by President Taft in support of the action of the United States in favor of American ships. If an irreconcilable divergence of view of the treaty and the bill continues to exist after such study, it is declared that arbitration of the question will be expected.

No reply, beyond an acknowledgment of the receipt of this note, will be sent Mr. Innes by the state department. The promise contained in the note of a further communication is regarded as making any action by the state department unnecessary at this time.

Consequently the state department and the president are to have a breathing spell before being confronted with a demand for arbitration of the controversy over the treaty. Upon the answer which is made to Great Britain, it is expected that the future arbitration policy of the United States will depend. It has already been predicted by senators that if the United States should refuse to arbitrate, that it would mean the death of the nation's arbitration treaties with the powers. The one with Great Britain expires in June next and the other with France in March of next year. These treaties could not well be renewed by either France or Great Britain in self-respect if the United States declined to arbitrate the canal question.

Fallacious Contention, He Says.

London, Aug. 29.—M. Bunagu Virilla, writing to the Shipping World in regard to the Panama canal law, seeks to show where the fallacy lies in the contention that the exemption of American coastwise vessels from dues cannot be a grievance of other users of the canal, because foreigners are debarred from American coastwise trade and therefore are not discriminated against.

HOW NATURE LEADS US ON

After the Courtship Dreams With Their Bright Hues Come the Babies' Future Dreams.

Love is an illusion. Some seem to take it as a bitter thing that after the honeymoon the married pair settle down to the humdrum of everydayness. But, in the first place, they never quite become entirely disillusioned. The stain of the rainbow lingers in the average marriage, and in the second place, even if this illusion passes, another comes, for there are the children, and lover and lass who once dreamed of each other now are father and mother and must dream of the babies' future.

Illusions are Nature's device for getting things done. That is why she fills young men so full of illusions as to their own power. Heaven help us if young people knew precisely what they could do! They would do nothing at all.

And if girls knew just what marriage was going to be, and all their future down to the grave, they would never marry. Illusions are Nature's bait.

Life itself is progressive illusion: "Maia" the Hindus call it.

And we are not poor dupes. Nature is not cheating us, and sneering at us the while. She is leading us on in love, as we lead our little children.—Dr. Frank Crane in Woman's World.

Mrs. Lela Love, wife of Wiley Love, a farmer living near Covena, Ga., says: "I have taken Foley Kidney Pills and find them to be all you claim for them. They gave me almost instant relief when my kidneys were sluggish and inactive. I can cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers from kidney troubles." F. B. Johnson & Co.

The London Evening Standard says that a letter intended for an inhabitant of Zurich reached him, although it bore no name. It described his appearance, stated that he had traveled in Russia, and married an English woman and never touched bed.

For the use of persons who have to move about floors on their knees there has been invented a low stool, mounted on casters and with depressions for the knees and receptacles for tools.

BEAUTIFUL HOME OF FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH IN LOUISVILLE, KY., COSTING OVER $300,000.

A GREAT CHURCH AT LOUISVILLE

Magnificent Structure Is One Of the Finest Buildings of the Kind In the South

HAS MANY YEARS OF HISTORY

Will Be Object of Interest When Thousands of That Faith Gather in Blue Grass State For Convention This Fall.

When the Disciples of Christ gather in Louisville, Ky., October 15th to 22nd, for their great international convention, the magnificent new First Christian church will be an object of great interest to them. Not only because it is one of the finest church structures in the south, but because of the history of this remarkable congregation which reaches back into the beginnings of things as far as this body of people is concerned.

The congregation was first known as Reformed Baptist, having separated themselves from the "Regular Baptists" after a friendly disagreement on points of doctrine in the early thirties. For awhile both branches of the church met in the same building.

The Reformed Baptists, of Campbell following, sold out their interest in the building to the regular Baptists, in 1833, and occupied for worship for two or three years a meetinghouse on Second street, between Market and Jefferson. From thence they moved into the church building on Fifth street, between Walnut and Chestnut, in 1838. In this building they worshipped until they moved into the new quarters on the northeast corner of Fourth and Walnut streets. Two buildings have occupied this site, the original building, which was a comparatively modest structure, erected in 1842 or 3, and the splendid old structure whose corner stone was laid in 1849, and which for fifty years graced and glorified the corner of Fourth and Walnut streets—the very heart and center of Louisville's life. This building, because of the necessities of commercial advance, and the limited equipment for modern church work, was sold, with profound regret on the part, especially, of the older members of the congregation, for the very splendid sum of $350,000. With this sum the present structure was built, after having donated $10,000 for the establishment of the Edenside mission church, and having paid off the bonded indebtedness on the old church.

Out of the church at Fourth and Walnut—the mother church—all of the other churches have come. Within the last twenty years the Fourth and Walnut Street church has directly, by the raising of money, and subsequent assistance, established the Clifton church, the Parkland church and the Edenside church.

It was not until 1833 that the larger body of the New Testament party assumed the name of "Disciples of Christ." Thus it was that the first movement among the Baptists of Kentucky, in the direction of those principles for which the Disciples plead, was made by the congregation in Louisville. It is proper to add that it was Philip S. Fall who gave the first impetus to the Reformation in this city, and introduced the custom of weekly communion.

The bronze tablet in the foyer of this present building gives in brief form the main historic facts, as to the places of worship and other interesting features.

The present building was dedicated November 12, 1911, and has entered upon a brilliant and prosperous career of work.

During this past year, from this congregation alone, has been pledged and mostly raised, nearly $3,000 for the special million dollar campaign fund for foreign missionary work, this altogether apart from the regular contribution to this cause and every other cause connected with the Brotherhood. The church has never emphasized one phase of the great mission work at the expense of the other; and so all interests have been provided for.

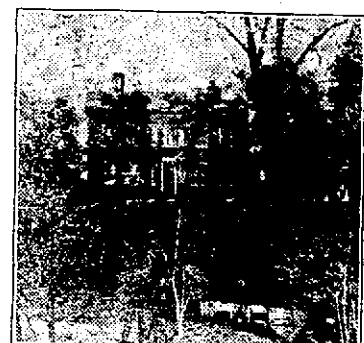

The present membership of the church is close to 1,400. It is a church rich in history and tradition, and dates in its ministry from the very beginning of the Reformation movement, and has had some of the most notable of the great pioneer leaders as its pastors.

OLD KENTUCKY HOME

SENTIMENTAL INTEREST SURROUNDS OLD HOUSE WHERE SONG WAS WRITTEN.

Will Be Visited in October By Thousands of Foster's Faith Who Convene in Louisville.

"Federal Hill," the antique mansion in which Stephen Collins Foster wrote "My Old Kentucky Home," is the property of Mrs. John Frost, of St. Louis. It is located near Bardstown, Ky., and was one of the first brick houses built in that state. It was erected in 1795. This roomy old house is surrounded by 350 acres of fine land. A hundred years ago the place belonged to Judge John Rowan, in his day a man of national prominence. It was during a visit to Judge Rowan that Foster, who was one of his most intimate friends, wrote the song which has helped to make Kentucky famous. Mrs. Frost is a daughter of John Rowan, Jr., at one time United States Minister to Italy, who won fame as a duelist. His most noted affair of honor was with Thomas Marshall, the noted Kentucky statesman. Marshall was shot in the hip and was permanently crippled.

House Where Foster Wrote "My Old Kentucky Home."

When the great International Convention of Disciples of Christ meets in Louisville this October a trip to this historic old place will be one of the interesting features. As this people had many adherents in Kentucky in the early days this convention is largely a coming back to the "Old Kentucky Home" and the deep heart interest of the occasion is intensified by the fact that Foster was himself a member of this communion.

QUAINT OLD BUILDING

Was Built in Pioneer Days by Friend of Daniel Boone. Will Be Visited By Church People in October.

The picture accompanying this article shows the historic old Cane Ridge Church located near Louisville, Ky., which has the distinction of being the first Christian Church in that state. In later years it has been weatherboarded, but the accompanying drawing shows it as it was originally.

This quaint old building was built by Robert W. Finley in 1791. Finley was a Presbyterian preacher who had fought in the revolutionary war and after freedom had been secured followed his friend Daniel Boone into the wilds of what is now the state of Kentucky. Cane Ridge was so named by Boone on account of its great fertility.

Finley built the church out of logs and also reared a school which was destroyed by fire a few years later. He moved into Ohio after a brief pastorate and in 1804 the worshippers in this church, under the leadership of David Purviance, a man prominent in the early political history of Kentucky, espoused the doctrines of Alexander Campbell and formed the first congregation of that people, now known as Disciples of Christ, in the state.

When the great international convention of this people is held in Louisville in October of this year, the badges worn by the delegates will bear a picture of this quaint and historic old church and a visit to it will be one of the interesting side trips which will be taken by the visitors.

Clam Chowder

Tommy Dewitt managed by living frugally in summer to pay his winter's expenses at college. As soon as the school year closed, Tommy was off for parts unknown, and it would have interested his friends mightily if they could have seen him living like Robinson Crusoe on an island off the coast of Maine, catching his own fish, setting his own lobster pots, planting vegetables in a tiny garden and making chowder out of a handful of clams, two potatoes and an onion.

That the result of the last-named recipe was appetizing was proved by the fact that four people landing on the beach from a motor boat sniffed with appreciation.

"It's a clambake," said the youngest of the crowd, a girl in a white serge suit with a short blue reefer. "Oh, I'm so glad, for I am starved."

Further progress showed a fire with a small iron pot set over the coals. A savory steam rose from the pot.

"But there isn't much of it," said the girl.

"Who's been eating my soup?" quoted a gay voice, and around the corner of a sandhill came Tommy.

"Oh," said the four intruders, staring. And well might they stare, for while Tommy lived like Robinson Crusoe, he wore a snowy white middie blouse and white trousers, his fair hair was brushed up from his forehead and shone in the sunlight, and his strong young figure showed the effect of good training and outdoor sports.

"We don't mean to intrude," said the oldest lady of the crowd, "but we are exploring the islands; we didn't know this one was inhabited."

"And there's something the matter with our boat," said the girl in the blue reefer, "and being women, we don't know how to fix it."

"Delighted," said poor Tommy. "But I hope you're not keen for chowder. There's only a taste. You see, I cook for one; but such as it is, it's yours."

He busied himself in serving the simple meal. And while he worked he listened. The girl's name, he discovered, was Helena.

"You enjoy living the simple life?" said the oldest dame, whose name was Mrs. Griggs.

Tommy nodded. "It's great," he said. "If you will stay for supper we'll have broiled fish and baked potatoes, and there's some lettuce left in my garden."

"We'll stay," said the girl, "if you'll fix our boat."

All that afternoon Tommy tinkered and the girl watched him while the three elderly ladies took a nap in the warm sand.

Then Tommy went out and caught a fish, and broiled it over the coals.

"And I'm sorry to tell you, ladies," he said, as he served it, "that your boat isn't mended, and that you will have to make yourselves comfortable for the night. I shall be glad to offer you the hospitality of my tent. In the morning a boat stops here with provisions. You can leave on that."

Since there was nothing else to be done, they consented, and after the fish was eaten Tommy and the girl walked down the beach.

They talked of many things; and Tommy lay awake half the night, wondering how he had believed that life was worth living until now.

He slept on the other side of the sandhill from the tent, and waked at dawn. After a plunge in the sea, he went forth in his snowy white suit to face the sunrise.

The girl was up and came down to the beach to meet him in the stillness of the wonderful morning.

"The sea is like a pearl," she whispered, "and the sky like an opal."

Tommy was breathing quickly. "Look here," he said. "The boat comes early, and before it comes I've got something to say to you—something to say—to you."

She smiled up at him frankly.

"Look here," he said, again, "you're the most wonderful thing in the world. Yesterday I was a boy trying to go through college and living any old way in the summer to help meet expenses. Today I'm a man, ready to fight life to the finish—to get you."

"I haven't a right to ask anything of you, but I've got to tell you this—that if you don't find the one man before I can come to you and fight it out with the rest of them, that you won't compromise and take some other fellow just because you're tired of waiting for the real thing."

Then because he saw Mrs. Griggs at the door of the tent, he went up the sands to meet her, and the girl was left standing where his burning words had beat upon her.

Breakfast was a feast at which the three older ladies ate heartily of lobster, and at which Tommy and the girl ate nothing.

"I'm not hungry," Helena insisted when urged, "and before the boat comes I want to walk to the end of the island—to—to—"

And when they had rounded the curve of the sands and were out of sight, he asked: "Have you forgiven me?"

"There is nothing to forgive," the girl said, "and I shall never forget because I shall want to remember that I shall want to wait."

Campaigns Compared.

The present campaign suggests in many respects that of 1872. In that year the liberal Republicans nominated a Republican who had left the Republican party because of opposition to Grant and who was also nominated by the Democrats. The comparison lies in the fact that many prominent Republicans left the party, and in the further fact that the Democrats supported a candidate who was not at all an old-time Bourbon Democrat. Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, was the nominee of the two conventions. The Republicans renominated General Grant. The Republicans all over the country were stampeded. In every State men who had been prominent in office and in leadership deserted the Republican party. Not a town nor a community existed that was not upset by Republican defection. Republican leaders looked hopelessly on at the supposed disintegration of their party. Among the Republican leaders of national fame who supported Greeley were Carl Schurz, William Cullen Bryant, J. D. Cox, David A. Wells, J. Brinkerhoff, Oswald Ottendorfer, William S. Groesbeck and Frederick Law Olmstead. These were only a few of the many, some known only to State fame. The list included ten United States senators.

Many prominent Republican papers supported Greeley, the New York Tribune, of course, and the Chicago Tribune, edited by Horace White. The Nation, however, which had encouraged the Liberal-Republican movement, repudiated Greeley with an editorial explanation which might in truth be made of the present nominee of the democracy, Woodrow Wilson. The Nation said: "The convention has offered us a candidate of undoubted personal honesty, who is, and has long been, associated intimately with the worst set of politicians the State (New York) contains—excepting the Tammany ring." It may be noted in the present instance that the so-called "Tammany ring" is itself going the Nation one better by supporting Wilson.

Horace White, editor of the Chicago Tribune, was chairman of the committee on resolutions in the national convention that nominated Greeley and drew up the platform. The grievances, as set out in the platform, were "corruption;" that the president was using his official position for personal ends; that he kept corrupt men in public places, and was unequal to the duties of his office, and concluded with the statement that a party "thus led and controlled can no longer be of service to the best interests of the republic."

There was considerable apprehension on the part of the Republicans when the campaign opened. Greeley himself was very confident. "I shall carry every southern State except South Carolina; that they will steal from me," he said. Greeley received only 147 votes in the convention on the first ballot. Charles Francis Adams led with 205, the rest of the 669 votes scattering. On the sixth ballot Greeley received 482 to 187 for Adams. B. Gratz Brown of Missouri was nominated for vice-president.

The New York Evening Post, which would have supported Adams, repudiated Greeley. William Cullen Bryant wrote the editorial which was headed "Why Mr. Greeley should not be supported for the presidency," and followed with the reasons, "the reasons" being his lack of courage, firmness and consistency, his bad political associations, his want of settled political convictions, except on the subject of tariff. Other reasons, more local and personal in character, followed. Perhaps some of the above reasons might apply to Woodrow Wilson at the present time.

Some of the elections were held at that time in September and October, for State officers, notably in Maine, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Indiana. To these States the whole country looked for the first indication, so great was the apparent uncertainty. Maine responded in September with a Republican majority of 17,000. In October Pennsylvania gave a Republican majority of 40,000, and Ohio a Republican majority of 14,150. Indiana gave a favorite son, Thomas A. Hendricks, a liberal Democrat, a bare majority of 1,148.

When the November returns came

Sam Sanderson Says:

That it is not fitting that one should brag about swatting a fly as there is a reward in store for one who swats.

in Greeley was found to be the most thoroughly defeated candidate, as far as the electoral vote was concerned, that ever ran for president of the United States. He got only the votes of Georgia, Kentucky, Missouri, Maryland, Tennessee and Texas. Pennsylvania, which had gone 40,413 Republican in October, gave Grant 137,548 majority. Ohio increased her Republican majority of October of 14,150 to 37,531 majority for Grant. And Indiana changed over from 1,148 for Hendricks to 22,515 for Grant. Greeley's own State, New York, gave a majority of 53,456 against him.

The New York Tribune on November 7th, printed a card from Greeley, announcing his resumption of the editorship "which he relinquished on embarking in another line of business six months ago." As he would never again be a candidate for office, he said, he would give more regard to science, industry and the useful arts.

Less than a month after Greeley's overwhelming defeat, the country was shocked to hear of his critical illness, and on November 29, 1872, came the news of his death. In the words of Dr. Cuyler, who preached the memorial sermon, "Mr. Greeley died of a broken heart." This last is merely a statement of history in connection with that remarkable campaign.

The lesson of the incident is that the Republicans at one time in the campaign believed that the party had forever been disrupted and were discouraged by wholesale defections in every State, yet in November of the same year won the most overwhelming victory in the history of the party. Not only this, but the party was not disintegrating, did not disintegrate, and has gone on for forty years doing great work in reform and the upbuilding of the country. Nor did occasional defections discourage, in state or nation. Nor is the Republican party disintegrating now. It will live to do great deeds long after the disappointed office seekers who are now attacking it are buried in the deep depths of oblivion.

There is a general unanimity of opinion concerning the regulation of trusts and other combinations of capital. In the main there is little difference between the parties as to the result desired, but it still remains a matter of record that the republican party is the only one that has actually done anything to that end. Given another republican administration with a congress in accord with it, and there will be measures for the supervision of trusts that a few years ago would have been regarded as incredible and impossible. It will not be perfect, of course, but it will be infinitely beyond what was to be expected a few years ago.

It is said that Senator LaFollette is determined to make T. R. disclose the sources of the money contributions to the Colonel's campaign. The Wisconsin senator has already demonstrated that he is never dismayed by the magnitude of any task that confronts him, but if he really expects to obtain any great amount of accurate information on this point, he has taken upon himself a work that will certainly test his resources. But so far as that is concerned the people already know the source of some of these contributors and many of the people have already formed a definite opinion as to the cause of it.

The Wayne county Bull Moosers will sell seats at 25 cents each at their convention in September to defray expenses. What's the matter with rudolph leads' barrel?

The only hope of effective trust regulation in the next few years is in a republican president with a congress in accord with him.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

IS IT IGNORANCE?
(Newcastle Courier.)

The Star does not know how much money has been spent in the interest of Mr. Roosevelt or of the progressive party, nor who has furnished the money. Whoever the latter may be, it has no reason to suppose that they did not come honestly by their contributions." Thus softly spake the millionaire-owned Indianapolis Star in reply to an inquiry by a reader.

It is strange that a newspaper with such facilities as the Star claims to have for gathering the news and obtaining information about all sorts of things that nobody ever heard of, should plead ignorance of a subject of such vital interest to the country.

The source of Roosevelt's financial supply for campaign expenses is a question of supreme importance. His own affectation of political holiness while his managers are spending money with unexampled generosity to promote the bull moose party and the character of the interests backing the project through Perkins as their agent, are calculated to raise inquiry if not suspicion. The Star as a self-constituted organ of reform and the palladium of the "deer peepul," ought to leave no effort untried to ascertain the facts for publication.

Senator LaFollette, through his newspaper, has repeatedly and fervently asked for a show down, and the demand is echoing and re-echoing from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the lakes to the gulf, yet Roosevelt, Perkins, Pinchot, Garfield, Hanna and all the lesser lights of moose-dom, including the millionaire-owned Star remain as dumb as an oyster. Where are the Roosevelt millions coming from?

Family Reunions

The annual Hillgoss family reunion will be held at the Rushville fair ground Sunday, September 8.

The Addison family will hold their reunion in Craft's grove, east of Charlottesville on Thursday, September 5th.

The fourth annual reunion of the Bates family will be held at the city park on Thursday, Sept. 5. Ward Bates is president and Mrs. Hattie Israel is secretary of the association.

The first annual reunion of the Foulon family will be held at the city park on Labor day, September 2. The officers in charge are Mrs. Janie Foulon, president, and Ferd Goldarn, secretary. Walter Wainwright and Omer Adams will look after the arrangements, and William Fanatti will look after the refreshments.

The Allender family reunion will be held in the Christian church at Arlington Tuesday, September 3. A basket dinner, speeches, music, readings and a general good time will be the order of the day. An earnest endeavor has been made to notify every one whose address is known. If you have been missed this is your invitation.

E. A. WILLIS,
Acting Secretary.

The second annual reunion of the Carew family will take place at the fair grounds, east of the city, September 4th. The officers of this association are: Henry Humponbak, president; Nancy Carew, vice-president; Russell Carew, secretary; Will Carew treasurer. Allie Youcomminer will look after the arrangements. Refreshments will be served and short addresses will be given by Henry Humponbak and Will Carew.

AMUSEMENTS

The Portola has an Essanay western drama, "The Foreman's Cousin" for the first picture tonight. The picture tells a thrilling story and features G. M. Anderson. "In Exile" is a Selig drama, the other drama, "The French Spy," a Vitagraph feature, will be shown at a future date.

The Princess will show a special reel tonight that is said to be one of the best Essanay pictures ever made. "Derby Day at Churchill Downs," depicts the scenes at that famous course. The picture begins with the training of a runner and takes the audience through the various steps until it is put through the terrible ordeal of a race, showing a sensational finish under the grand stand. "The Choir of Densmore," a powerful Lubin drama, is the other picture. Florence Turner will be seen in a film tomorrow night.

GRAY IS AFTER QUAKER VOTES

Sixth District Proposes As Much be Spent For Olive Branches as War Ships.

HE PRESENTS A RESOLUTION

Democrat Promptly Rules it Out of Order and Gray Threatens to Bolt.

Representative Finly Gray from the Sixth Indiana district has become the official defender of peace, says a Washington dispatch. Mr. Gray no doubt expects his attitude to make him secure in the esteem of his constituents and insure their votes regardless of party lines, as he well knows there are not enough Democrats to send him back without aid from independent thinkers. The member from the sixth is making a strong play to the Quaker sentiment in his district and believes, therefore, he is justified in making the play in the recent caucus of his party that he did.

Even his Democratic colleagues from Indiana were not prepared for the dove and olive branch proposal he thrust into the caucus in the form of the following resolution:

"Resolved, That it is the policy of the Democratic members of the house of representatives to promote meditation instead of militarism as a means of averting war, and to that end, and to obviate the growing expenditures for the navy, and to reduce such expenditures and to enable the United States, as the foremost civilized nation of the world, to lead out in the great world-wide movement for peace, said Democratic members hereby declare for an appropriation in such sum as may be required to carry out said purposes, not exceeding the cost of one first-class battleship, to wit, $15,000,000."

Representative A. S. Burlison, the Democratic caucus chairman, held the resolution out of order in about one second of time, and in the next second Representative Gray served notice on his Democratic colleagues that he would bolt the caucus and vote against any appropriation for battleships.

All of this happened at a lively session of the caucus one afternoon last week. Making good his promise that he would bolt the caucus, which declared for one battleship, Mr. Gray also made a speech in the house of representatives which was one of the most stirring eulogies of the dove of peace that has been heard in the chamber for some time.

"I shall make no campaign speech," he began. "I hold the walls of this chamber too sacred to be desecrated by a partisan harangue, and I take this occasion to voice my protest against a practice prevailing here by long-established custom."

"I am opposed to an appropriation for two battleships. I am opposed to an appropriation for one battleship. I am opposed for battleships. If we are to take our place among the nations of the world as first standing for peace and against war, then we should declare our position by an appropriation for peace and not battleships. But if we must appropriate for one battleship to appease the war ring spirit of today, let us save at least our principle of the cause of meditation and appropriate as much to promote peace as we appropriate to build battleships."

"This appropriation for warships will not make us stronger to cope with the nations of the world. It will only prompt like appropriations by other nations. If we increase our navy today, England will increase her warships tomorrow, and then in turn France will excel England and Germany will out-rival France. And then we must build again to keep pace with this mad rivalry in arms and armament. The grounds which are urged today to increase our navy can and will be urged again and again. Must this drain of the nations still go on to exhaust all human resources and prostrate the civilization of the world?

"This appropriation will not only burden the people of our own land but it will be caught up on the spirit of war and military rivalry of all nations, to be multiplied and weighed upon all the people of the world. It will wrest food from the hungry clothing from the half-clad and the naked, fuel from the cold and shivering and shelter from the homeless and unhoused. These warships, if built, will fill the world with blood, anguish and devastation, if they are used, and their cost will bring want and destitution to the human race, whether they are used or not."

"I am opposed to this nation entering upon a rival contest with the powers of the world in a vain and inglorious effort to excel in the instruments of war and human slaughter. I am opposed to draining the resources of this great nation of ours and dwarfing our institutions of charity and peace to bind upon our civilization the burdens of a barbarous age. I am opposed to this declaration by our government in disregard of mediation and the great peace movement of the world, that we are still relying upon force as the arbiter of justice and holding to the standard that 'might makes right.'"

—Frank Wilson and Chauncey Duncanson attended the Connersville fair today.

—Mrs. Owen Kineaid and Miss Suganna Sexton left this morning for Denver, Colorado, where they went for the benefit of Miss Sexton's health.

—Mrs. James I. Parker of Washington, D. C., formerly Miss Frances Giffin, came last night to be the guest of Mrs. Sarah Giffin in North Morgan street for a week.

"He must have 'em!" he exclaimed.
"No, Mr. Officer," Winthrop said, as Hap eased the coat sleeve over the wounded arm, "you've got the wrong
pig by the tail this time. I was fixing my carburetor when you brave officers of the law pounced upon me. I hadn't the slightest idea why, unless you were trying to rob me. I haven't been anywhere, and I assure you I haven't stolen anything. I certainly have not shot anybody. You see I haven't a gun."

"Easy to get rid of that," argued the chief. Suddenly an official forefinger was thrust into Winthrop's face. "Young man, you've been snoop-
ing up and down this shore in that
boat all summer. We know that long-roasted boat of yours. And them robberies have been happening just the nights you've been out. We've been hiding in the shrubbery ever since the first one; you've run away from us twice when Dave there didn't keep his eyes open. But we've got you now! You're a darned fool trying a thing like that when it's as bright as day, and we've got you!"

"And now that you have me, what are you going to do with me?" Winthrop inquired.

"Take you to jail," the chief replied succinctly. "Cough up the sparks
now, like a good fellow."

"I haven't them," Winthrop denied.
He went to the desk and rang up John Crowninshield. I saw John when he ran out of the house, jumped into the car Vincent had brought around,
and disappeared down the driveway.
I even knew where he was going.

Just as John turned through the iron gates into the road Winthrop
gathered together and shaped neatly
the sheets of the novel that lay upon
his desk, made a note in a book,

There's Nothing That So Awe's a Detective as a Lawyer in Evening Dress.

arose, taking the manuscript with him,
and knelt before the safe. He worked the combination and pulled open the door.

"What you got there?" asked the chief suspiciously.

DON'T PULL OUT THE GRAY HAIRS

A Few Applications of a Simple Remedy Will Bring Back
the Natural Color.

"Pull out one gray hair and a dozen
will take its place," is an old saying,
which is, to a great extent, true, if no steps are taken to stop the cause. When gray hairs appear it is a sign that Nature needs assistance. It is Nature's call for help. Gray hair, dull, lifeless hair, or hair that is falling out, is not necessarily a sign of advancing age, for
there are thousands of elderly people with perfect heads of hair without a single streak of gray.

When gray hairs come, or when the hair seems to be lifeless or dead, some good, reliable hair-restoring treatment should be resorted to at once. Specialists say that one of the best preparations to use is the old-fashioned "sage tea" which our grandparents used. The best preparation of this kind is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of domestic sage and sulphur,
scientifically compounded with later discovered hair tonics and stimulants, the whole mixture being carefully balanced
and tested by experts.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is clean and wholesome and perfectly harmless. It refreshes dry, parched hair, removes dandruff and gradually restores faded
or gray hair to its natural color.

Don't delay another minute. Start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur at once and see what a difference a few days' treatment will make in your hair.
This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

STOP SNEEZING AND SNIFFLING

For Hay Fever and Cough Colds Try
Ely's Cream Balm. It Gives Instant Relief.

"Balm" is just the word for this
soothing, healing, antiseptic Cream.
Its effect in cases of Hay Fever and Cough Colds are almost magical. You just grease the nostrils with a little of the Cream, inhale the pleasant,
aromatic fumes; and in a few minutes your head begins to clear, the soreness is relieved, and the sneezing,
who have suffered for years with sniffing and weeping stopped. People
Hay Fever and Cough Colds can be free from all the distressing symptoms by simply using Ely's Cream Balm
morning and night during the Hay Fever Season.

Hay Fever is due to an irritated,
inflamed condition of the mucous membrane (inside skin) of the nose
and throat. Strong powders, snuffs and sprays simply aggravate the trouble. "Young man, you've been snoop-
ing up and down this shore in that
boat all summer. We know that long-
roasted boat of yours. And them robberies have been happening just the nights you've been out. We've been fied.

"A novel," answered Winthrop.

The chief was regarding the open door of the safe with a cunning eye.

"A safe!" he ejaculated. Then he caught his breath with a puff. "Sort
of careful of what you write, ain't
you?"

"Well, rather," Winthrop laughed.
Then, to Hap: "Hap, I may want this if I'm tied up in jail. See, I'm putting it here."

The chief's hands gripped his shoulders and whirled him half-way across the room, while Jim and Dave closed
in on either side of the safe.

"We'll just take a peek at that safe.
Full of novels, I guess? Well, I just want to see. You know them robberies have been going on all summer."

Winthrop looked on, caressing the wounded arm. It was uncomfortable,
and he had struck it against a table.
His face was white, and he dropped into a chair while Hap put a sympathetic hand on his shoulder.

"He's got no right to search without a warrant," Hap insisted.

"He's doing it," Winthrop replied.
The search revealed nothing but papers, contracts and such, until, just as John slapped on the emergency at Winthrop's door, the detective Jim held up an inlaid box, beautifully fashioned and somewhat heavy.

"Looks suspicious," he remarked,
and passed it to his chief.

The chief took it and shook it inquiringly.

"Well, we'll take a look at this," he remarked.

Winthrop's figure stiffened, but he did not arise. He pointed a forefinger
first at the chief, then at the inlaid
box in the chief's hands.

"Crowninshield," he directed, speaking to John, who had appeared in the doorway, "make a note of the contents of that box and hold that man accountable. He has no search warrant!"

John didn't even blink. He came forward, taking a fountain pen and note-book from his pocket. The chief
had given the inlaid box a blow
against a table and the top of it had fallen open. There came a little cry from everybody, all differently intoned, except from Winthrop and from John, whom nothing could surprise.

The two detectives, Jim and Dave,
gasped with astonishment, and the chief growled in satisfaction.

"Diamonds, eh!" he said. "And rubies, and—other things." He slapped the lid shut suddenly.

"No, you don't there," John said
sharply. "We'll make a note of everything."

"I know my business," snarled the chief.

"And I know mine. I'm John Crowninshield of Crowninshield &
Peabody, attorneys for Mr. Abbott.
We'll make a note of everything, my good man, including the fact that you are proceeding without warrant of law."

There's nothing that so awes a detective as a lawyer in evening dress
with his hat off; with a clear, cool
voice, and truculent eyes. The chief,
after a puff, slowly opened the lid of
the inlaid box and put out the jewels,
one by one. Finally he held up a bracelet; an old-fashioned affair, set heavy with emeralds. "Not another like it in the world!" Natalie had said
"or so many emeralds matched" so perfectly."

Hap rose suddenly, overturning his chair, and John paused just the barest fraction of a section before he made the entry.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Midnight Visitor.
It was not very long before Hap came. I knew it was he, for instead of going into the house and ringing
for the gray car like an orderly, well-
behaved person, he stood on the terrace and yelled for it. Strangely enough, no one realized that anything had happened. The piano tinkled, I could catch bits of conversation from

the bridge players, the click of billiard balls sounded, and there was a rattle
of chips from the cardroom upstairs.
Hap had disappeared into the house,
but presently, when Vincent brought
the gray car in front, he came out,
climbed into it, threw in the gear with a clatter that made me shiver, and he, too, disappeared down the driveway.

A knock came at my door, and Burrows was there with a note. For the fourth time that evening I opened a note from Hap and read it:

Dear Louie—Winthrop has been arrested, as you know, and the pig-
headed fool of an officer won't listen to reason. We've got to find a judge and get him out on bail. It's an awful mistake. Don't get uneasy, John will straighten out everything. The old general isn't badly hurt. It will be in the newspapers. I don't think any power on earth can stop it, but I want to ask you not to believe it, and don't tell Laura unless you must. HAP.

I had barely finished reading when Laura knocked and came in. I crushed
the note in my hand.

"What's the matter with everybody?" she asked. "John went away,
after a mysterious message, and now
Hap has gone, and you're here looking like a ghost. What is it? Has Natalie lost anything else?"

"I don't know," I replied. "I haven't seen her."

"I didn't dare come up until I saw your light still burning, and I thought, perhaps—have you and Hap
quarrelled?"

"No," I said. "Why should I quarrel with Hap?"

"Something has happened," she insisted. "You look queer, guilty. Has Hap been proposing to you?"

"How absurd you are," I smiled.
"Don't you think of anything, dear,
but love and proposals and marriage?"

"Perhaps I don't," she replied slowly.
"No one will let me think of anything else. Louie, I'm sick of it all,"
she burst out suddenly. "I've made a fool of myself. I expected Winthrop
tonight; I even waited at the gate, sure of him, and he didn't come. Does
he think that's the way to win a woman?
Then when I came back, Charlie Ayer made a fool of himself. You've been neglecting him lately, and he had to turn to me for consolation, so
with Benny Bliss, and now Charlie—"

"It's in the air," I said, and the tone
was tragic, although I intended to be flippant.

"Even His Grace has been considering me," she went on, "ever since Mrs.

A STITCH IN TIME

Rushville People Should Not Neglect
Their Kidneys.

No kidney ailments is unimportant.
Don't overlook the slightest backache or urinary irregularity. Nature
may be warning you of approaching
dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease.
Kidney disease is seldom fatal if treated in time, but neglect may pave the way. Don't neglect a lame or aching back another day. Don't ignore dizzy spells, irregular or discolored
urine, headaches, weariness or depression. If you feel you need kidney help begin using the reliable,
time-tried remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills. For 50 years, Doan's have been found effective. Endorsed by Rushville people.

Mrs. L. B. Leeds, 904 W. Second street, Rushville, Ind., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and they are just fine. I was subject to dizzy and nervous spells and my kidneys were weak, causing backache. Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in my family with good results, so I took them. They promptly cured me and I have not been bothered since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo,
New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Harrison let it drop how much I was worth in my own right. Of course,
he's after money, and I could be the Duchess de Trouville if I beckoned, notwithstanding all that devotion to Natalie. I have more money than she has. I've been wondering tonight if I'm not all wrong, if it isn't wiser to marry some one who wants me rather than some one I want." She suddenly covered her face with her hands.

"Don't dear," I begged. "Winthrop loves you. He's working for you."

"Is he?" she asked, and her hands fell to her sides listlessly. "He hasn't told me so. A woman wants something to go on. A woman wants a man to take her and keep her and let nothing matter but that he loves her.
That's what a woman wants, isn't it?
He would come if he cared. He would ask me to marry him if he really cared."

"Perhaps he couldn't come," I said.
"I heard him go out in the boat while you were at dinner. Perhaps he intended to get back and his naughty heroine kept him. You know he solves knotty places like that, and he's trying so hard to finish. Laura, you know he loves you."

"Yes, I suppose so," she agreed. "I can't see it that way tonight. I'm hurt and I've drifted dangerously near a precipice. Charlie Ayer nearly pulled me over. After all, I couldn't be so desperately unhappy with Charlie."

Perhaps it needed only a word from me to fulfill my duty to Mrs. Hazard, but I couldn't say it. I seized her hands in my own and with a vehemence
that surprised both of us, I said:

"Don't give up the man you love,
dear. He needs you, he's going to need you more. Love him, believe in him, and whatever happens, keep on believing in him."

"What's wrong with you?" she demanded. "You are not yourself. Is anything troubling you? Not that silly ruby? Has John's going away anything to do with it?"

"No, dear, there's nothing wrong
with me."

"You haven't been—been arrested?"

"No, of course not. But I'm dead tired. I think I've let myself get hysterical. Perhaps the summer had been more wearing than I thought.
I'm going to sleep now; I'll be all right tomorrow."

"You're coming with me," she said.
"No, not tonight. I want to be alone. I'll be up early. May I kiss
you goodnight?"

She laughed, kissed me and started
out; then she paused and turned back.
"Don't you worry over what Natalie said. It's perfectly silly." And she was gone.

I noticed that the telephone was ringing insistently on Mrs. Hazard's desk. I answered it. It was long distance, wanting Mrs. Hazard. I sent for her, fearing, dreading what might come over the wire. I was so ignorant of what could be done to Winthrop. I fingered only with the idea of being able to help her.

"Yes," she answered. "Is that you,
John? . . . Wait up? . . .
What is it you want me to sign?
 . . . Oh!" She held the receiver
to her ear a long while, but she didn't say anything else except, "Goodbye."

"What is it some one wants you to sign?" Laura wanted to know.
To be continued.

CHARGE MADE OF STOCK JUGGLING

Suit to Set Aside Merger of Traction Companies.

A CONSPIRACY IS ALLEGED

Action to Set Aside the Agreement of Consolidation Executed Last Spring by the Officers of the Union Traction Company of Indiana and the Indiana Union Traction Company Has Been Brought at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Aug. 29.—Suit to set aside the agreement of consolidation executed last spring by the officers of the Union Traction company, whereby the two companies were merged into the Union Traction company, has been brought in superior court by Alice Norton, the owner of 180 shares of common stock in the original Union Traction Company of Indiana. She was one of the stockholders who sought to prevent the consolidation last spring by receivership and injunction proceedings in the federal court. This suit was dismissed by the plaintiffs after the court had overruled a motion for a temporary restraining order.

The charges made in the present complaint are similar to those made in the federal court suit and in a suit filed by Alexander W. Thompson and George J. Marott in the circuit court, asking that a receiver be appointed for the Indiana Union Traction company and to enjoin the two companies from merging. The plaintiffs in the latter suit do not recognize the consolidation effected last spring. This suit is now pending. Charges of the juggling of the two companies' stocks and bonds by the officers of the companies and of a conspiracy to put through the consolidation in order to save the bondholders of the Indiana Union Traction company from loss are made by the plaintiff.

BARNYARD COOPERATION

Hog and Weasel Form a Curious Partnership.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., Aug. 29.—Justice of the Peace John W. Probst discovered a queer animal friendship between a large Chester White hog and a big weasel. They have been feasting for several days from Probst's poultry yard. Probst had missed about fifty of his choice chickens, and after a vigilant watch he discovered the hog catching the chickens and saw the weasel come through a hole under the barn floor. The little animal would cut the throats of the chickens and suck the blood, after which the hog would devour the body and then hide the feathers in the mud in the hog pen. After eating three chickens the hog lay down in the sun and the weasel got busy and began scratching the back of the hog, much to the delight of both animals. Armed with a pitchfork, Probst killed the weasel, but was attacked by the hog and knocked down. After a hard fight Probst escaped from the pen. After the death of the weasel the hog refused to eat and continued to grunt and squeal day and night until Probst had to sell it to a butcher. Probst sold the hog for $18 and the weasel for $2. He valued the chickens these "affinities" destroyed at $50.

Runaway Mules Kill Child.

Worthington, Ind., Aug. 29.—The six-year-old daughter of William Rhodes, a farmer of Smith township, was instantly killed by a team of mules running away with a farm wagon. The child's head was crushed. The mules frightened at the whistle of a steam thrashing machine and ran into a crowd of women and children who stood near. All managed to get out of the way except the little girl.

Auto and Motorcycle Collide.

Crown Point, Ind., Aug. 29.—In a collision between auto and motorcycle, Mrs. Fred Nau was probably fatally injured. Four others were slightly hurt. Fred Nau sought to avoid collision with Fred Lee, who was riding a motorcycle. His auto skidded down an embankment and overturned on the occupants. Lee also was injured.

Another Victim of Lightning.

Goshen, Ind., Aug. 29.—Isaiah Christophel, a wealthy farmer near Wakarusa, was killed by lightning. A storm has swept over northern Indiana every other day for ten days. Heavy rain-fall and lightning accompany the storms and several people have been killed and the property loss is heavy.

Baby Burned to Death.

Walton, Ind., Aug. 29.—Fire destroyed the log cabin occupied by William Bowyer, and a fifteen-month-old baby was burned to death. Bowyer, Mrs. Bowyer and two children were badly burned and Bowyer's burns may prove fatal.

Medicine Within Baby's Reach.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 29.—Lucina Jasick, twenty-two months old, swallowed ten or twelve strychnine pills and died four hours later.

State Librarian Injured.

Indianapolis, Aug. 29.—Demarchus C. Brown, state librarian, was knocked down by a motorcycle while crossing a street. His wrist was broken.

LEFT ALONE TO DIE OF HUNGER AND NEGLECT

Sam Houston's Indian Widow In Pitiable Condition.

Lawton, Okla., Aug. 29.—Melissa Houston, a full-blooded Kiowa, once the handsome and popular Indian wife of General Sam Houston, first president of the republic of Texas, deserted and an outcast from her tribesmen, has been left alone to die of hunger and neglect in her weather-beaten tepee, three miles from Anadarko.

According to the best authority, Mrs. Houston is 115 years of age. She is toothless, blind and a pitiful sight as she sits in her lonesome tepee. It has long been a custom of the Kiowa and Comanche Indians to abandon their old men and women to fate and allow them to die by degrees. Melissa Houston has not escaped the common fate.

Tramp Used a Knife.

Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 29.—James Nelson, an employee of the Lafayette Packing company's ice plant, was attacked by a tramp and badly injured because he refused to comply with the tramp's demand for money. The tramp drew a knife and drove the blade into Nelson's side. A dangerous wound was inflicted. Nelson was taken to a hospital and may recover. The tramp escaped.

Slander Suit Filed.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 29.—Suit for $50,000 damages for alleged slander against John W. Talbot, national head of the Owls, has been filed by F. J. Louis Meyer, attorney, following Meyer's discharge in an insanity case. Talbot tried to have Meyer adjudged insane after a quarrel a month ago. Meyer also filed an insanity complaint against Talbot, but it has not been tried.

Progressives Fight Longworth.

Cincinnati, Aug. 29.—Dr. A. O. Zwick of this city is to be the Progressive party candidate for congress against Nicholas Longworth (Rep.) and Stanley Bowdler (Dem.) It was thought that because Longworth is a son-in-law of Colonel Roosevelt the Progressives might not name a candidate to oppose him. It has been decided to the contrary, however.

VIII.—The Sand-Clay Road.
 By LOGAN WALLER PAGE,
 Director Office of Public Roads,
 United States Department of Agriculture.

A SAND-CLAY road is composed of sand and clay mixed in such proportions as to form a compact and firm support to traffic. The perfect sand-clay road should be neither sticky nor sandy. The sand and clay may form a natural mixture, in which case the road is termed a "natural sand-clay road." The two materials may have become mixed in the fields along the road by successive cultivation of the soil, and if this soil is used in the construction of a road it is known as "top soil road."

MIXING THE SAND AND CLAY.

There are many varieties of clay and consequently a wide variation in the characteristics of a sand-clay road. The quality of the sand is a variable factor, as it may range all the way from fine, dust-like particles to coarse grains and gravel and may be perfectly clean or mixed with loam and other material. In consequence of these wide differences in the materials constituting sand-clay roads it is impossible to maintain a uniform standard as to quality of the road or methods of construction.

Not all but most sand consists of tiny grains of quartz. While quartz is one of the hardest minerals known, it possesses practically no binding or cementing power. The grains of sand, instead of cohering in a tough mass under the impact of traffic and the action of water, remain loose and shifting. Fine sand when dry is easily displaced by the wind, which produces in this way the ever shifting sand hills. No road is so difficult to travel as one through fine sand.

If clay has been carried in small quantities by running water and deposited as sediment it is known as "sedimentary clay." If the feldspathic rock has been disintegrated in place by water the clay is known as "residual clay." The sedimentary clay, having been carried in the form of fine particles, is finer grained than the residual clay and is more sticky and plastic. In contrast with sand, which possesses no binding power, but is very hard, clay is a powerful binder, but does not possess the quality of hardness. It is evident that in the construction of a sand-clay road the important property in the clay is its plasticity or tendency to become sticky and elastic when mixed with water. The clays which are most plastic are called "ball clays." Another important property which is possessed by clays in widely varying degrees is the porosity or capacity for rapid absorption of water. Clays which possess this quality in the highest degree fall to pieces under the action of water. These clays are called "slaking clays." It will readily be seen that the plastic or ball clays will form a better and more powerful binder for sand-clay roads than will the slaking clays; but, on the other hand, they will be much more difficult to mix, as they disintegrate with far less rapidity.

The shrinkage of clay is an important characteristic in connection with the building of roads. When water is mixed with clay expansion results, and when the water evaporates the clay contracts. This characteristic of expansion is much more pronounced in some clays than in others, and it must be apparent that the clays which expand the least are preferable for road building.

The theory of the sand-clay road is very similar to the theory of the macadam road. In the latter rock dust and screenings fill the voids between the angular fragments of stone and when wet serve as a cement or binder. The grains of sand may be likened to the angular fragments of stone and the most successful sand-clay road just a sufficient amount of clay is used to fill the voids between the grains of sand. In this way the sand, acting as the wear, while the clay serves as a binder. If too much sand is used the result will be loose sand on the surface; if too much clay is used the surface of the road will become sticky after rains.

The best mixture of sand and clay can be made when the materials are wet, and particularly is this true of the plastic or ball clays.

If the clay is a plastic or ball clay much greater effort will be necessary to obtain a complete mixture; if it is a slaking clay the mixture will be much more readily obtained. This kind of clay is not as satisfactory, however, as the ball clay, as its binding powers are much less. In selecting clay for road purposes it is always best to select the stickiest clay available. A common test is to wet the thumb and place it against a piece of clay. If the clay will not stick to the thumb it is safe to assume that it will be a poor binder in a sand-clay road.

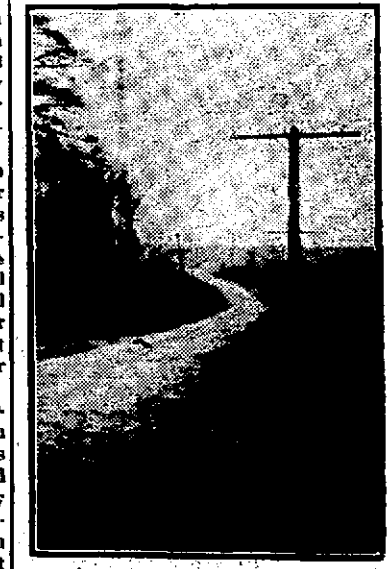

As the desirable proportions of sand and clay are such that the particles of clay barely fill the voids between the grains of sand, it is well in determining the quantity of clay to be applied to a sand road or sand to be applied to a clay road to know approximately how much is needed. A simple method for determining the relative quantity is to take two glasses of the same size and fill one with dry sand which it is proposed to use and the other with water. The water should then be poured carefully in the glass of sand and allowed to trickle down through the sand until it reaches the bottom of the glass. When the water has been poured into the glass of sand to the point of overflowing we may assume that the voids between the grains of sand have been filled, and consequently the amount of water taken from the full glass would represent the volume of clay needed to fill the voids in a volume of sand equal to that in the other glass. It is better to use a little less clay than would appear to be necessary, as the tendency is to overestimate the amount needed.

Good drainage is the most essential feature of the sand-clay road just as it is of all other types of road. A sandy or gravelly soil affords better natural drainage, and if the sand is present to an exceptional extent the only provision necessary for drainage will be to crown the surface of the road in the same manner as prescribed for earth, gravel or macadam roads. If the road is located through land that is so low as to be continually wet it will be necessary in addition to crowning the road to provide wide ditches on each side and to raise the roadbed a little higher than the surrounding country.

After proper drainage has been secured the roadbed should be crowned, beginning near the source of supply of the clay or sand. The clay should then be spread to a depth of from six to eight inches in the center, sloping off gradually to a thin layer at the sides. Upon the clay should be placed a thin covering of sand. If the clay is of the plastic kind it will then be necessary to plow and harrow it, advantage being taken of rains to puddle the surface with a disk harrow. Sand should be gradually added until the surface of the road ceases to ball and cake.

If the clay is placed on sand to a depth of six inches a cubic yard of clay will cover fifty-four lineal feet; consequently a sixteen foot road treated in this manner would require one cubic yard of clay for each three feet of length. A mile of sixteen foot road would therefore require 1,700 cubic yards of clay.

If the clay subsoil is to be treated with sand it should be plowed and harrowed to a depth of about four inches. On this prepared subsurface should be placed from six to eight inches of clean sand, spread thickest at the center and sloping to the sides in much the same manner as the clay is applied to a sand road. These materials should then be mixed dry instead of the wet mixing, which is preferable when clay is applied to sand. This is preferable because the clay can be better pulverized when in a dry state. After dry mixing the road should be puddled following the first heavy rain. When the materials are thoroughly mixed and puddled a road

machine or grader should be used to give proper crown to the road, and if a roller is available the road can be improved by the use of it. As it is impossible to determine exactly the proportions of sand and clay to be used in the first place, it is necessary to give careful attention to the sand-clay road for a considerable time after it is completed, in order that additional sand or clay may be applied as needed.

In 1904 there were only 1,000 miles of sand-clay roads in the United States, but at the present time there are approximately 2,000 miles.

ALL HORSES IN 1 RACE FROM HERE

Shelby County Fair Couldn't Have
Had 2:14 Pace Yesterday Had it
Not Been For Local Drivers.

THEY FURNISH SOME SPORT

Frances Hall, in Harrie Jones's Stable, Wins 2:30 Trot—Ciel
Maple's Good Season.

Rush county horses are still
"breaking into the money" in the various racing circuits in the middle west. Most of the Rushville trainers are at the Shelby county blue ribbon fair at Shelbyville this week. A number of Rush county horses and Rushville trainers will be seen at the State fair in Indianapolis next week.
The 2:14 pace could not have been run at Shelbyville yesterday had it not been for Rush county horses and drivers. Every one of the four starters in the pace were Rush county horses, and all of them, with one exception, were driven by Rush

county men.

Billy H., a Rush county horse, who was trained and driven, until this year, by Dave Wagoner, won the race, but it required five heats for the gray pacer to do it. He found that Rush county blood was a hard thing to beat. Billy H. finished third the first heat and second the second heat, and then turned in and won the last three heats. The best time was in 2:13 1/4, but several Rush county men say that the horses went two of the heats in 2:12 and were marked
back in time.

J. C. Patchen, Joe Christman's big black hobbled pacer, repeated his stunt of last week here by winning the first two heats and then losing
the race and having to be satisfied with second money. He couldn't come back as strong in the third heat and finished second. The other two heats he finished fourth and third.

Gay Patchen, Dave Wagoner's little bay mare, won third money and Martin Kelly, Will Brown's horse in Clyde Nebro's stable, won fourth money. Martin Kelly didn't finish in the money at the Rush county fair
races last week.

Frances Hall, a brown mare in Harrie Jones' stable, won the only other race on the Shelby county program yesterday, the 2:30 trot. She was driven by Riley Nebro, a brother of Clyde. It took four heats but was set back to second position for running on the back stretch.

Harrie Jones has a stable of eight horses at the Shelby county fair.
They are: Mabel B., 2:11 1/4; Copeland, 2:12; Azim, 2:22; Constantino,
2:20; Lilly Patchen, 2:30; College
Jim, 2:07; Amy Roundwood, a green horse, and Frances Hall, 2:30. Mr.
Jones will start at the State fair in Indianapolis next week.

There will be a number of other local entries at the State fair. John Dagler will be seen there with his bay trotting mare, Ruth Randal, who couldn't get anything better than a half of second and third money here.

Elmer Humes has a couple of green horses, one of which will likely be seen in a race for the first time at the State fair. Peter Simms, by Sim-more, who has been a mile in good time will probably be started in the 2:27 trot Thursday. Charles Swy, together with the Simmire offspring,
are in the Mart Wilson stable in Indianapolis and have been receiving their early lessons in the race game
on the half mile track at the State fair grounds. Charles Swy has been a half in one minute flat and his trainer and owner are expecting great things of him. It is not likely that he will be started this season.

A green Rush county horse was to be started for the first time at Shelbyville today. Ruby T., who has been working to the satisfaction of her owner, Roscoe Titsworth of Noble township, and her trainer, John Rhodes of Greensburg, Decatur
county clerk, was to be raced today.

She may be started at the State fair.
Ciel Maple is at Greenville, Ohio,
this week with his string of seven or eight horses. Helms earned the Daily Republican that he has had a very successful season thus far by being thirteen times in the money out of eighteen starts. Game of Chance, a fast three-year-old, has won three firsts. Lady Maude S., another green three-year old, has won second money four times, and Nellie Gray has won one race and third money twice.

12 JURORS GET THE PRICE TRIAL

Speculation is Rife in Greensburg
That Jury Will Hang as it Did Before.

CLOSING ARGUMENTS MADE

Some Delay Noted Because the Case
Was Expected to End Yesterday Evening.

The Price murder case went to the jury in the Decatur circuit court at Greensburg late this afternoon. The belief was general that the jury
would hang as it did in the first trial
when it disagreed.

State's Attorney Ralph Spangh
made the opening argument. His talk consumed a couple of hours,
and yesterday morning when court
resumed, Frank Hamilton for the defense followed. In line after him
were William Fitzgerald and Horace Skillman. J. E. Osborn was to make the closing argument for the defense.
Seba Barnes will make the closing
pleading for the State.

Interest in the famous trial is intense as it rapidly approaches an end. It was noticeable yesterday afternoon that more women than men crowded the court room. It is impossible to seat all who have been attracted, and the aisles and passageways are filled with those standing.

With an allowance of six hours
of argument on a side, the last pleading would have been made by six o'clock yesterday evening, when the judge was to give his instructions to the jury and they would then take the case. There was much speculation as to the matter of hours which the jury will deliberate, but the general opinion was that they will be in their consultation room but a short time until a verdict has been reached.

Price was nervous yesterday. The man's very appearance was suggestive of the terrible strain that he labors under, and his actions are those of one that seems to welcome the fact that he will soon know his fate
no matter which way the jury will decide.

HOLD REPORT IS IRREGULAR

road would have cost $18,813.15.

All bids for the Norman Apple road were rejected because of an error in advertising for them and the auditor was ordered to readvertise for bids September 25. Bids for repairing the floor of the court house assembly room will be received at the same time. All bids on the Hall bridge were likewise rejected.

The contract for repairing the county power house which supplies
heat to the court house and jail was awarded to Neal & Stahl for $4400.
The contract calls for two new boilers and a general overhauling of the heating plant.

Yesterday afternoon the commissioners were expecting to award all four of the road contracts, but in the end only one was awarded. The Norman Apple and the Lew Oneal roads were postponed until today and the commissioners ordered the auditor to readvertise for bids on the D.
H. Dean road. The contractor who gave the only estimate on the Dean road got strangely mixed with his figures and gave an estimate for it
that he intended for another road.
The commissioners thought it would be illegal to let a contract under such conditions.

The contract for the Melvin Moor
road was awarded late yesterday afternoon to L. H. Coulter & Son of Milroy for $5,142.50.

The Women's Relief Corps of the Joel Wolfe post of the G. A. R. celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary
in the court house assembly room yesterday afternoon. A program was carried out and a general good time
was enjoyed by the many members
who were present.

Wooltex Week

Most of the ladies of the county recently received a letter from Paris explaining to them
in detail the special showing of Wooltex Garments that would take place in this store
during the week.

August 26 to August 31

During these days of special exploitation you will be schooled in what is correct for fall wear in style, color and fabric. Our showing is complete and you will do well to make your selection early.

The right fashions for you are the ones that make you look well dressed among other well dressed women, that stay in style as long as they last, and don't cost too much. The answer is Wooltex. Come early in the week.

EDWARD JUNKEN EXPIRED TODAY

resided east of Arlington.

The eight years Mr. Junken spent working on the farm in the summer
and attending the district school in the winter. He had to toil industri-ously to make a livelihood and to gain an education, but he was equal to the task. Attributes were instilled into his character that were largely responsible for his future success as a farmer. His education was limited to the common branches, but it was sufficient to fit him for the walk of life in which he moved.

The war was not yet over when
Ed Junken was wedded to Miss Sarah Beale, September 25, 1862. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
William Beale and has been dead for several years. The wedding took place on a beautiful Christmas day when Mr. Junken was home on his first furlough.

Until the end of the war Mrs. Jun-ken lived with her parents on their farm in Jackson township. Soon after his return, Mr. Junken and his wife settled on the Posey township
farm on which they spent the remainder of their life and on which
Mr. Junken died. His daughter, Mrs.
David Webster, and her husband,
have been living on the old home
place and caring for Mr. Junken.

Four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Junken, three of whom survive:
Mrs. David Webster, Mrs. Sabert
Offutt of Arlington and Alva Junken
of Posey township. Robert E. Jun-ken, the fourth child, died in infancy.

The funeral services will be conducted from the Junken homestead
Saturday afternoon at two o'clock,
and the body will be laid beside that
of Mrs. Junken in Arlington East
Hill cemetery.

—Mrs. Belle Gosand and Miss
Daisy Hosier of the firm of Gosand & Hosier, successors to Miss Sue Gregg
milliner, returned yesterday from a several days stay in Chicago where they bought an entire new stock for their store.
